Model whose excessive plastic surgery made her a living Barbie shows off doll-like proportions in high fashion shoot

By DAILY MAIL REPORTERPUBLISHED: 20:09, 13 November 2012 | UPDATED: 23:58, 13 November 2012506View comments

A Ukrainian model is making waves in the U.S., not for her natural good looks however, but for her cosmetically-enhanced Barbie looks that have turned her into a living doll.

Valeria Lukyonova, 21, became an internet sensation after a video was released about the epic plastic surgery procedures she allegedly underwent to transform into a real-life Mattel doll.

Now she has posed for V magazine's latest 'Girl Power' issue, with her doll-like proportions taking center-stage.

Real or fake? Many people were initially skeptical of Miss Lukyonova's porcelain looks, wondering if she was an simply an internet Photoshop creation

The magazine writes: 'Our source also claimed that the Security Service of Ukraine is having Lukyanova's activities monitored. "Be careful," we were warned. "We're worried for you and do not want you to suffer from her."'

Miss Lukyanova, whose spiritual name is Amatue, tells V magazine that her 'real job' is 'a teacher at the School of Out-Of-Body Travel... an international school in which our instructors show students how to leave their physical body and travel in their spiritual body, where you can visit any place on the planet and in the universe.

She adds: 'I know that this is the future of mankind.'
